

The charts below show the internet use in different purposes in Australia in 2010,2011 and the percentage by users. Summarise the information by selecting and reporting the main features and make comparisons where relevant.

The bar chart illustrates the proportion of Australian people using three various service of internet, including social media, paying bills online and emailings and percentage per person, between 2010 and 2011.

Overall, the rate of residents using email for working was highest according the generic glance. Also, the rate of young people using social media made up the largest proportion while elder people was object who preferring to read mail and paying online more than.

On the common ground, the percentage of citizens connecting to internet for sending and receiving email in working was nearby 70%. This is followed by those who selecting payment via internet and social media form with a half and 47% population, respectively.

Regarding the rate in the three accessing form in internet per person, the percentage of individuals accessing internet for paying online shared comparable figures and trend with that of those who approaching email for serve working, lowest to 60% of 18-to-25 age group. Similarly, the oldest population group involving online payment reached around 60% to 80%, equal to that of group using emailings and larger than over 61% compared to residents of 26-to-40 group. Meanwhile, social networks was field of entertainment attracting younger people in Australia with the rate of over three-fifth in population total, whereas the percentage of elderly people significantly lower than, approximately one-fifth.